

Kalahari Sunrise

A New DVD and Photo CD set from The Sandstone Heritage Trust

Photograph: Aidan McCarthy

Every year, Sandstone Estates in the Eastern Free State hosts an event in honour of South Africa's industrial heritage.

Enthusiasts from around the globe converge here to participate in what has become one of the most prestigious events on the heritage calendar.

The 2012 event celebrated the centenary of the Class Hd locomotives of the Otavi Railway in German South West Africa. These locomotives evolved into the famous Class NG15's - otherwise known as "Kalaharis".

Not only does the DVD cover the ten days of action, it also gives fascinating historical insights into many of the participating machines. It is much more than just a video record of a passing parade.

And the accompanying CD of more than 100 photographs is a worthwhile addition to any library in its own right, giving as it does the different perspectives of the photographers.
